JUDGMENT

Ramachandran, J.

An order had been passed by the Family Court, Thrissur on 20.11.2006 whereby interim custody of the minor child on a specific day between 9 a.m. And 5 p.m.. is granted to the respondent/husband. The wife has been asked to hand over the child in the premises of a church. Aggrieved by the order, learned counsel submits that this writ petition has been filed principally worrying about the safety of the child. We do not think the writ petition is sustainable for this reason, as custody is ordered to be given to the legal guardian. The order appears to be reasonable and self contained. It needs no interference.

The writ petition is therefore dismissed.
